The Greater Cincinnati Chick-fil-A restaurants are partnering with The Anthony Muñoz Foundation to inspire and motivate young people through Move 2012 Youth Leadership Seminar at Xavier Cintas Center on Thursday, Oct. 11.

More than 100 high schools from the Tri-State area will come together for Move 2012, a one-day program that encourages students to “Move Forward, Give Back” with a focus on making a positive impact not only on themselves, but in their school and community.

“We are really excited to partner with the Muñoz Foundation for such an amazing event. Youth leadership and development is a key priority for us at Chick-fil-A and being able to do so, on such a large platform, is truly revitalizing,” said Michael Calloway, franchise Operator of the Chick-fil-A Western Hills.

Students will hear two guest speakers: retired Navy SEAL, Jon Sanchez and Journey to Action representative Cassidy Brown. There will also be breakout sessions; lunch provided by Chick-fil-A, a Q&A with Anthony Muñoz and live entertainment by KJ-52. In the afternoon, the students will participate in the Anthony Muñoz Service Challenge

The seminar is free; schools only need to provide transportation to and from the event. Up to 12 students from each school along with three administrators can attend. Schools are able to register at www.munozfoundation.org.
